Disruption in the age of COVID 19

Dear Reader,

COVID-19 has altered the way businesses function and will no doubt, accelerate digital transformation for many organizations, acting as an unwanted catalyst for change. Today, because of virtual collaboration environments, many of us are able to work from anywhere and this has helped ensure business continuity and a smooth transition for companies who had adopted digital technologies.

This new world and way of being brought in by COVID-19 is a true test for any company on their Digital Transformation journey and a reminder that we need to quickly accept digital technologies if we are to survive these uncertain times.

In this edition, we have highlighted the rise in demand for cyber security professionals, training and development workshops and webinars on new age technologies, and CDT membership connects through its 6th governing council meeting. It would be great to listen to your thoughts on digital transformation and how your organisation is approaching the same in terms of readiness, initiatives and adoption.
